PROFILE

A product-driven professional with over a decade of experience spanning engineering and design, including 5 years dedicated to product design, I build, scale, and manage digital platforms. I craft intuitive, impactful end-to-end solutions for both mobile and web applications. Most recently, as a Product Manager, I led product development from strategy to launch, collaborating closely with design, engineering, marketing, and business stakeholders. My combined expertise in product design, robust technical foundation, and product management effectively translates user needs into clear, actionable solutions that drive product success.
